

Recovery Grants of up to $5,000 are available for local community organisations and small groups interested in running a nature-led recovery project in their local area.

The funding can be used to help bushfire affected communities deliver on-ground action for wildlife and habitats, or nature-based, educational or arts programs with the aim of connecting environmental recovery with human recovery.

Examples of activities which could be supported include:

- Holding Nature Recovery Walks
- Installing Interpretation Trails
- Telling the stories of nature: public environmental artwork
- Helping nature recover: e.g. 'citizen science', revegetation etc
- Creating nature reflection spaces.

This project is a joint initiative between Bushfire Recovery Victoria, Zoos Victoria, and DELWP.
